WELCOME.....to another 12 months in the life of Small World as we manage to survive in this harsh climate.

We continue provision for those most in need and indeed what has come across plainly and clearly is the need young people have to find an antidote to the current system of education which tests, monitors and judges them to a point of great stress.

This year saw a continuation of the Tune Up Chill Out project though its focus and energies have shifted to provide young people with an escape, without judgement. Funding was secured from BBC Children in Need for a further three years and allowed us to develop the project to include more outdoor activities and less emphasis on schoolwork. We are looking forward to our first family camp out.

We also began the Baby Music project funded through Youth Music which offers music, movement and dance sessions for the under 5s enabling purchase of tiny instruments to encourage involvement in music making from a very young age.

The Brelms Trust also supported the Baby Music mums group through additional support and healthy eating activities as well as one to one support for those who needed it.

This year also saw the start of Breathing Space, a BBC Children In Need small grants project. This was planned with young people who attended the previous Planet Drama project as well as the Moving On sessions. When we asked them what they wanted/needed it became apparent that something which was pressure free but with access to resources and skills; a place to just come and relax after a busy week; and somewhere to meet up with friends. This approach is working really well with the group well established now and with funding in place for three years a good timescale to work with.
